Call for Papers

Sibirica: Interdisciplinary Journal of Siberian Studies invites scholars from all disciplines to contribute scholarly writing to our journal published by Berghahn.

Sibirica is a peer-reviewed interdisciplinary journal covering all aspects of the region and relations to neighboring areas, such as Central Asia, East Asia, and North America. The journal publishes articles, research reports, conference and book reviews on history, politics, economics, geography, cultural studies, anthropology, and environmental studies. It provides a forum for scholars representing a wide variety of disciplines from around the world to present findings and discuss topics of relevance to human activities in the region or directly relevant to Siberian studies. The editors aim to foster a scholarly discussion among people with the most varied backgrounds and points of view. Submissions are welcomed from scholars ranging from the humanities to the natural sciences. Articles that discuss other geographical areas but make direct comparisons with Siberian peoples will be considered.

Please review the submission and style guidelines carefully before submitting.

Submissions should be prepared as Microsoft Word or Rich Text Format (rtf) files and submitted using the online submissions system: ojs.berghahnjournals.com/index.php/sib/ Authors must register with the journal on the submission website prior to submitting, or, if already registered, they can simply log in. On registering as an Author, authors have the option of also registering as a Reviewer (to be called upon to undertake peer reviews of other submissions).

Authors interested in reviewing books, films, museum exhibits, conferences or writing review articles should contact the Reviews Editor (John Ziker) at sibircareviews@gmail.com. All other editorial inquiries should go to the editor (Jenanne Ferguson) at sibiricajournal@gmail.com.

Articles should normally be 6,000 to 10,000 words (including notes and references), although longer articles may be considered. Research reports should be 2,000 to 6,000 words, reviews should be 800 words, and discussions should be 1,000 to 5,000 words.

Please refer to the Berghahn Info for Authors page for general information and guidelines regarding topics such as article usage and permissions for Berghahn journal article authors.
